

Open Call for 11:11 Online residency 13 June - 13 July 2022

Deadline 22 May

Residents selected by 28 May

11:11 Online is a one-month residency offering Residency 11:11's online platforms to develop a body of research. We are interested in alternative uses of the online and questions around the intersection of art, technology and accessibility.

Supported by Arts Council England, Residency 11:11 is offering a one-month online residency to an art practitioner or collective with an affinity to the digital.

Who can apply: All art practitioners both national or international.

We are interested in collaborative projects and applying as a group/collective is encouraged. Residency 11:11 is a queer women run organisation and we prioritise giving opportunities to queer artists and women artists.

What we offer: £250 artist fee, curatorial support and project development, use of our website to develop research and test new ideas, zoom and social media outputs, online public event at the end of the residency

To apply:

1. Send us a brief outline of your proposed project max one A4. Or max 5 min voice recording. Make sure to incorporate the following:
  - How will you be using the online
  - Why is the digital relevant to your project
  - What are you aiming to gain from the residency
  - If you'd like to facilitate a public online event at the end of the residency and what form you imagine this to take
2. Portfolio no longer than 10 pages (PDF) or slideshow/video showcase no longer than 5 min (Vimeo or Youtube link) . Please send one portfolio combining works if applying as a group. Feel free to add text if this feels appropriate.

Please send all information attached to one email body to residency1111@gmail.com or email us here for any questions.

About residency 11:11:

Residency 11:11 is an artist-run and artist-led residency offering domestic and online residencies alongside a public programme of events and workshops. Initiated by artists Giulia Shah and Alexandra Bell in 2018, the residency runs from their flat in London. Residency 11:11 is a queer women run organisation and we prioritise giving opportunities to queer artists and women artists.

As an artist-run initiative we share experiences as peers and support artists in the same way we would like to be supported. As an artist-led initiative we encourage artists to identify what they need and from here we do our best to support this.

Residency 11:11's domestic residency is a research based residency situated in a residential shared flat in London. For a duration of one month the residency aims to connect its guests to the city's artistic landscape, encouraging practitioners to explore local discourses and collaborations.

Since 2019 we have been facilitating an online residency programme. The 11:11 Online residency is accessed from your computer screen and encourages residents to explore and share a new body of research via our online platform. 11:11 Online focuses on questions around the intersection of art, technology and accessibility.

11:11 supports art practitioners by opening up the network of friends of 11:11. By creating transnational connections we are interested in diverse practices that question the role of art and how this can differ across borders, histories and economies.

Our 2022 programme is kindly supported by Arts Council England. The grant will help us support artists by offering fees, growing relationships with new and existing collaborators and develop professionally as a valuable arts initiative.
